HEADTEACHER'S NEWSLETTER

Half a Term has almost gone already!

It seems incredible that we have already approaching the half term break. Time definitely flies when you are having fun!

I hope everyone has made an appointment to see their child's class teacher next week. Following feedback from parents last year we have kept the hybrid option of some face to face meetings and some online meetings. After half term I will send home a short survey to find out if this is still what parents want.

I understand that some people, who did not go on to book early, may not have been able to book the appointment you would have liked. Please contact your child's class teacher if this is the case and they will try to do what they can. Please understand though, they often have work commitments after school (either meetings or after school club commitments). Our day does not finish when the children go home.

I would also like to thank those of you who are carefully reading this newsletter. It always makes me smile when I remind parents of things and their response is that they did not know that, even though it has been written on the last few emails or newsletters.

Happy reading!

School Uniform

A lot of time in school is being wasted looking for jumpers that are not named. Please ensure all clothes are named and you use full names rather than initials as initials can not always be very helpful in the first instance.

Can I also remind all parents that it is black shoes and trainers for school. If your child does not have black trainers, please send them in wearing their black school shoes and then they can change into their trainers for PE. When you come to replace trainers, please can you buy plain black trainers to match our uniform.

Parent's Evening

As mentioned above, it is parents evening next Tues 18th and Thurs 20th. If you have not booked yet, please make sure you book your slot by Sunday 16th October. Please bear in mind there will be limited slots left. Any problems please see you class teacher.

Scooters on Site

I am pleased to see so many children scooting and cycling to school. It is a great way to get the blood pumping before school and to ensure children are awake and ready to learn.

Please can I remind parents though that children need to get off their scooters and bikes when they arrive at school and walk them to the parking pods.

Thank You.

Mobile Phones on Site

For safeguarding reasons, mobile phones should not be used on the school grounds. Please would you ensure that any adult picking up your child from school is aware of this.

During school events, the school will take photos in school using iPad, cameras and iPhone which are owned by the school and only kept in school. Parents should not be taking photos at any event at our school or another school unless it is specifically stated that you can.

Thank you for your support with this

I am sure you are all aware of our red bump notes, some of you more than others! We have had a few concerns recently regarding how often children are coming home with these.

Red bump notes are given to any child who says they have had a knock to the head, even if it is very minor and there is no evidence at all that anything has even happened. The reason for this is that we are not prepared to take any risks when it comes to head injuries as it could be serious. If the trained office staff feel that the head injury is more serious you will receive a phone call from the office to explain what has happened.

You will find that the younger children, particularly those in Nursery and Reception will tend to come home with more red bump notes and injuries. The majority of the time this is due to them exploring their environment but with limited awareness of their surroundings. They tend to focus on themselves and get so involved in what they are doing they forget there are other children around and other obstacles they can bump into and fall over. In KS1, the additional issue is the love of an ice pack and red bump notes so children will say things have happened just to get the coveted ice pack and bump note.

Although we always want our children to be safe and not to be hurt, we do need them to explore, climb, build and learn about risk. If we never give them opportunities to take risks, they will not learn to manage risk and recognise when the risk is too high. In addition to this, in early years in particular, the children need to develop core strength as this will in turn support their ability to sit in class and focus and help them develop better fine motor skills which are needed for art and writing.

I just want to reassure all parents that receiving a red bump note does not mean that their child is being careless or overly clumsy, they are just learning. If we ever had any concerns over a child's physical development, we would of course be in touch with you to discuss this further. If at any point you have any concerns, please contact your child's class teacher.

Thank you.
