

Bridge

One early bright morning a big brown bear went on a wobbly bridge and met a sleepy moose coming the other way. They budged into each other because they wanted to get to the other side.

"You go back to the start because I want to go through," said the bear fiercely. A small raccoon walked onto the wobbly bridge and gently tapped the big bear on his back.

"Please may I get through?" said the cute raccoon. The bear grabbed the raccoon hit him on the head and threw him to the start of the bridge. A fluffy rabbit hops onto the bridge and taps the moose on the back.

"Please may I get through?" said the rabbit happily. Moose turns around the grumpy moose grabs rabbit and kicks him hard! The rabbit flies all the way back to the start. "That's not nice," said the raccoon and starts to untie the rope.

"That's not nice," said the rabbit and starts to gnaw the rope the bridge fell side wards. Bear and moose held each other tight and screamed.

"Aaaaaaahh!" as they fell into the river below. A little while later rabbit hopped along the broken bridge and raccoon crawled along from the other side. They stopped in the middle and stared at each other because they were stuck and could not pass. Suddenly raccoon had an idea. He bent down so rabbit could jump over him. They smiled at each other and went on their way.
